MUCH PUZZLED ABOUT CASTRO

Evicted Former Venezuelan President an Undesirable.

WHAT IS TO BE DONE WITH HIM?

State Department Officials Do Not Know What to Do If He Should Be Identified on Gunboat Consul Grostuck.

Washington, June 15.—State department officials are about as greatly puzzled over the question of what to do in case they actually come upon Cipriano Castro, the former Venezuelan president, who was driven into exile, as they were in the first place over the question of how to rid the western continent of him.

It has been decided that one of the gunboats now in the Caribbean shall be ordered to Haytien waters to take a look at the converted gunboat Consul Grostuck that is officially reported as having Castro on board.

Since this ship appeared at Port De Paix the state department has consulted by cable with the foreign governments interested and an understanding has been reached that in case Castro attempts to land, action similar to that taken at Trinidad shall be resorted to.

About two years ago, shortly after Castro had been driven out of Venezuela, he was discovered on a French tramp steamer heading for his native land. President Gomez, of Venezuela, informed the powers that he would be able to take care of the exile if a landing were attempted and the French government agreed to his arrest if he left the ship at Laguayna. Castro suddenly turned in at Trinidad, however, and the British government, acting on the agreement, pushed him on out to sea, so to speak. From there he drifted back across the Atlantic and was reported to have made his way secretly from the Canary Islands up through Europe, where he is supposed to have financed the present expedition for the purpose of overthrowing President Gomez, who succeeded him.

President Simon of Hayti is considerably perturbed over the situaton. According to a telegram received at the state department from Minister Furniss at Hayti, a gunboat has been sent from Port Au Prince to meet the Consul Grostuck which left Port De Paix for Port Au Prince.

It is expected that the American gunboat will be able to assist in identifying the proper nationality of the ship on which Castro is casting about as a soldier of fortune, but it has not been decided as to what action can be taken by the American vessel, even if Castro is sufficiently identified and the ship is found to be flying the German flag without authority.

Since France, Great Britain, Holland and Germany are all agreed with the United States that Castro shall not be allowed to land in the neighborhood of Venezuela on the ground that he is an undesirable citizen, it seems reasonably certain that he will not have the opportunity for some time to come of stirring up a revolution to gain the ascendancy in his native country.

Ohio Woman Is Accused of Administering Poison to Girl.

Delaware, O., June 15.—Miss Merle Henkle, who, it is alleged, was given arsenic by her stepmother, Mrs. John Henkle, and who is in the Case hospital here, rallied sufficiently to make another statement concerning the case, in which she further accused Mrs. Henkle.

The patient, physicians say, has only a slight chance to recover. Mrs. Henkle was held under a $2,000 bond to await the action of the grand jury.

YAWL SEA BIRD SPOKEN

Twenty-Five Foot Vessel Containing Three Men Is on a Perilous Voyage to Italy.

New Bedford, Mass., June 15.—The first word from the twenty-five foot yawl, Sea Bird, bound with a crew of three on a cruise to Italy, has been received. She was spoken on Sunday night southeast of Martha's Vineyard island by the sloop Barbara, which has just arrived here.

The little vessel will touch at no port unless misfortune befalls her until she drops anchor in the harbor of Fayal, in the Azores, to replenish oil and supplies.

Her crew comprises Thomas Fleming Day of New York and Theodore R. Goodwin and Fred B. Thurber of Providence.

SUGAR MEN DODGE STAND

Visit Washington by Request, but Await Subpoenas in Probe.

Washington, June 15.—Officials of the American Sugar Refining company, under investigation by the house special sugar committee, declined to enter the capitol until commanded to do so by subpoena.

John E. Parsons, general counsel for the company, came to Washington from New York on the mere request of the committee, but remained at a local hotel until a process server had visited him. Other officials were served with subpoenas before they left New York for Washington, where they are wanted as witnesses.

WORK ON MAINE WRECK

Pumping To Be Resumed Today in Presence of General Bixby.

Havana, June 15.—The pumping of water out of the cofferdam around the wreck of the battleship Maine will be resumed today. Brigadier General Bixby, chief of engineers, will be present.

The process of clearing the water from around the wreck will take several days. The pumping will be done cautiously in order that the great dam may not become weakened. To avoid any strain the engineers will make an examination of the dam after the removal of every five feet of water.

ALLEGED HERETIC OUT

Dr. Freeman Resigns As President of Morningside College.

Sioux City, Ia., June 15.—Dr. Luther Freeman, president of Morningside college, handed in his resignation to the board of trustees and it was immediately accepted.

Dr. Freeman gained considerable notoriety from an alleged heretic speech which was made at Kansas City about a month ago. It is alleged by the college faculty and the retiring board that his recent utterances on the Bible had nothing to do with his resignation at this time.

Train Kills Two Women.

Milan, Mich., June 15.—Mrs. C. S. Glascow and Mrs. Jessie Mills, wives of farmers, were killed when their buggy was struck by a Wabash passenger train while on their way home in the country. Mrs. Glascow was thrown forty feet and was dead when picked up. Mrs. Mills died an hour later. The women stopped the horse but it became frightened and jumped in front of the engine.

COOKE GAVE HER MONEY PACKAGES

Mrs. Ford Admits Receiving $22,000 from Him.

SAYS IT CAME FROM BIG FOUR

She Took Money and Went to New York, Where Cooke Joined Her —Testified Others Were Getting Railroad Money.

Cincinnati, O., June 15.—Mrs. Jeannette Ford was called to the stand following Charles L. Warriner in the trial of Edgar S. Cooke.

Before she had testified more than a few minutes she startled the courtroom by declaring that Cooke had given her $22,000. She also revealed her relations with the defendant, so far as the judge and the attorneys would permit. The money, Mrs. Ford testified, was in packages.

"Cooke would visit me at my flat two or three times a week," she said. "Each time he came he brought packages, which I concealed in a trunk. Later I went to New York, engaged a safety deposit box at the Bankers' Safe Deposit company in Wall street and put the packages in it.

"Cooke and I went to New York in September, 1901. We went to the safety deposit vaults and opened the packages and counted the money. It came to $22,000, all in $10, $20, $50 and $100 bills."

"While you were in New York did you have any talk as to where this money came from?" she was asked.

"Yes; Cooke said it came from the Big Four," was the reply. "Cooke explained how and why he got it. He said other men were getting money, too."

BURNING CHIMNEY CAUSES FIRE ALARM—LITTLE DAMAGE RESULTS

A small blaze which caused little damage caused considerable commotion at the Teal residence on Water street Wednesday evening about 6:30 o'clock. The fire department was called but nothing more than a chimney burning out was found to be the cause. The fire was quickly put out before any serious damage was done.

NORMAL GIRLS PRESENT SPLENDID EXHIBITION

A big enthusiastic crowd gathered at the Normal gymnasium Wednesday evening to enjoy the interesting and novel features of the program which the women's gymnasium classes had prepared for this their fourteenth annual exhibition, under the charge of Mrs. Fannie Cheever Burton, director.

There were several numbers which demonstrated the regular work of the classes, such as clever club swinging, the military marching executed with finest precision under Mrs. Burton's commands, and the Swedish lesson, also by command, which included nearly two hundred girls and quite filled the floor space All these exercises, done in such practised unison, were extremely good to watch The wand drill in which the girls were divided into groups of three, was very surprising and interesting. The third in the triangle had no wand but went through the figures as though she were thus equipped. The two with wands supported the third while she went though with some extremely clever movements.

The folk dances had been selected from a wide range of countries and suggested the simple, unstudied play of rhythm—loving and ingenuous peoples Some very frankly rollicking jigs and yet in these were a sense of form and finish that made it interesting and good.

The esthetic dances were tremendously entertaining and were graceful to a degree The hall was darkened for the torch club swinging, done by a group of more advanced pupils. With these torches alight in their hands, they looked like one of Raphael's Days and the swinging of the torches made at times a violet hoop. Again as they darted blithely hither and thither, the scene looked like fire-flies on a summer night.

The rose dance, in which each girl carried two long-stemmed roses, was deliciously pretty, especially when just at the close the girls met in a close mass at the center, each holding aloft her roses like a sudden garden.

The antern march was delightful both for color and form. Each carried aswing at the top of a wand a lantern lighted. They were in the gayest colors and of all conceivable shapes. The marching and counter marching, the forming of pretty figures, made this one of the striking successes of the evening.

A Japanese dance in costume closed the program Japanese parasols covered each resplendently bright costume and with the aid of these coquettish adjuncts a series of very attractive figures was executed.

MAGONIST CAUSE GAINS HEADWAY

Army of Suppression to Move on Lower California.

MADERO URGES QUICK ACTION

One or Two Hundred Volunteers to Leave Juarez Within Day or Two—San Antonio Attacked by Liberals.

El Paso, Tex., June 15.—The Magonista socialistic movement is gaining headway in Mexico, and there is to be no further delay in sending troops to Lower California to suppress the Magonistas now opposing the government there.

General B. J. Viljoen, of Boer war fame, received the following message from Francisco I. Madero, dated Iguala, Guerrero: "Don Abram Gonzales has wired you to order whatever may be necessary for the troops. I advised Mexico regarding the cannon, but by all means it would be advisable for you to march now with the troops you have there, and those of Cabral and the others will join you later."

As a result of this message, 100 or 200 volunteers will leave Juarez in a day or two for Lower California. They will have some small pieces of artillery and will be commanded by Viljoen. Only volunteers are to be taken, as it is desired to have an army of willing fighters. Some objection to Viljoen's leadership was made by Mexicans residing in El Paso, who declared that there were plenty of Mexicans fully as capable to lead the command.

The Magonists are not confining their activities entirely to Lower California. Last week arms and ammunition were seized here, and four of their men arrested.

Madero officers in El Paso have been notified of an attack made on the town of San Antonio, seventy-five miles southwest of El Paso, on the Rio Grande. The liberal forces, about thirty in number, attacked the ranch of Lamar Davis, an El Pasoan, and demanded all the horses, arms and ammunition that were there. Francisco and Dairo Sanchez, who were in charge of the ranch, refused to surrender and were made prisoners, the liberals taking two horses, two mules, a number of rifles and ammunition and all the provisions on the place. Word was sent to Jose De La Luz Sanchez, in command of the Maderista troops, and he sent seventy men. They were joined by thirty residents of San Antonio and the liberals retreated to the hills.

The report says that Preciliano G. Silve and one of his sons were in the liberal ranks and the elder Silva sent to the American side for ammunition and provisions during the fight, which lasted two days. The Silvas were the men arrested in El Paso last week for having arms.

During the fight the liberals received aid from a man stationed on the American bank, who signalled the movement of the Maderist troops. The liberals are now said to be located at Pilares in the hills, and a force of Maderista troops will be sent to drive them away and if possible to capture them.

INDICTS NINE SLUGGERS

Grand Jury Acts in Chicago Labor War.

That Body Finds True Bills Against "Moss" Enright and Others In Death Cases.

Chcago, June 15.—The grand jury returned fourteen indictments against labor sluggers. The true bills were returned before Judge Fitch in the criminal court and involve Maurice (Moss) Enright, Walter Stevens, Harry Higgins, Joseph Kane, William (Red) Connors, Edward Storgaard, Peter Gentleman, brother of William (Dutch) Gentleman, who was mortally wounded in Pat O'Malley's saloon; John McCabe, alias George McKay, and Arthur O'Connor.

Shortly before the return of the indictments a well-dressed man who had been taken to the prosecutor's office tried to escape. Captain John Halpin seized him, but refused to divulge his identity. The man was taken back into State's Attorney Wayman's office.

Mrs. Vincent Altman, widow of one of the three labor leaders slain in the bitter "sluggers'" warfare, went before the grand jury and between sobs poured out the story of the fatal assault upon her husband. She repeated, word for word, the deathbed statement Altman made to her just before he breathed his last at the Cook county hospital.

She said her husband told her that two men entered the saloon and that after he greeted them one of them shot him. When he staggered against the bar rail he said he was shot in the back.

COLOR LINE IN SCHOOL

Illinois Supreme Court to Struggle with Adams County Case.

Springfield, Ill., June 15.—The color question in the public schools is before the supreme court again. Representative George H. Wilson of Quincy filed a motion for leave to file a petition for a writ of mandamus in the case of the people on the relation of Aaron Brown, colored, against the board of education of school district 172 of Adams county, to compel the board of education to admit his children to the white school in the neighborhood of his home.

Brown has two children, nine and twelve years old. The board of education of Quincy built a school for the colored children of the city, but as it is one and three-fourths miles from Brown's home he refuses to send his children to that school and the board of education will not admit them to the white school near his home. The board of education has prosecuted Brown for not sending his children to school.

NEGRO TO HAVE GOOD POSITION

William H. Lewis to be Assistant Attorney General.

QUIETLY CONFIRMED BY SENATE

Expected Fierce Opposition of Southern Democrats and Long Deadlock In Senate Melt Away Before Lodge's Persuasiveness.

Washington, June 15. — The threatened opposition to the confirmation of William H. Lewis, of Boston, as assistant attorney general in the department of justice, in charge of Indian depredations claims, disappeared in the executive session of the senate and the nomination was confirmed in the most prefunctory manner without debate or a demand for a roll call.

There was something of a shock to the southern Democrats when the announcement was first made that President Taft had decided to nominate Lewis to the office. The nominee was a colored man and the statement was made that the office to which he was to be elevated was the most important ever bestowed on a colored man; that he would not only preside over a bureau made up of many intelligent clerks and subordinate officers, both male and female, but that he would take a social rank at official receptions above many important civilian officers and would even outrank some men in the army and navy wearing shoulder straps.

The announcement of the proposed appointment of Lewis was made in the campaign of 1910 and was regarded as something of a political move to demonstrate to the negro voters that President Taft's administration was not unfriendly to the idea of recognizing colored Republicans. A storm was raised in the senate and for a long time Lewis' nomination was held up in the judiciary committee. When it, was finally reported a few weeks ago the prediction was made that there would be a long and bitter fight by the southern Democrats against the confirmation.

But Senator Lodge, who is very friendly to Lewis politically, has been busy exerting his conciliatory offices to remove the opposition. The senator pointed out to his Democratic colleagues that Lewis was an unusually intelligent man, having been graduated from Harvard university and having filled a number of offices with credit to himself, notably the office of assistant United States attorney for the district of Massachusetts. Lodge also reminded his Democratic colleagues that the post to which Lewis had been appointed is not so important, either in the salary attached or the official rank conferred as many other offices filled by colored men, even under a Democratic administration. President Cleveland made several appointments of colored men to office more important. Senator Lodge's arguments finally prevailed.

KNOX BEFORE COMMITTEE

Secretary Throws No Light Upon Day Portrait Voucher Case.

Washington, June 15.—Secretary of State Knox appeared before the house committee on expenditures in the state department. Secretary Knox testified concerning the so-called Day portrait case He thereupon laid before the committee the long-lost voucher for $2,450 and other documents in the case that have mysteriously reappeared after having been missing for five years.

The documents submitted by Secretary Knox throw no definite light upon the final disposition of the $1,600 that was paid out by the treasury on the voucher over and beyond the $850 charged by Albert Rosenthal, the Philadelphia artist, for painting the portrait of William R. Day, then secretary of state and now associate justice of the supreme court.

DRUNK TO SHAME HUBBY

But He Was Drunk, too, and Failed to Catch the Moral.

South Bend, Ind., June 15.—Mr. and Mrs. Fred Trumbull were arrested after causing a disturbance at their home and were charged with intoxication. Mrs. Trumbull said she got drunk to shame her husband, who, she said, had been getting drunk several times a week.

The husband, said the wife, also was drunk when he arrived home, and failed to appreciate her attempt to shame him. She said he attacked her, kicked her and finally picked her up bodily and threw her into the hall. Judge Farabaugh let the wife go, but fined the husband $22 and sent him to jail for sixty days.

And now comes the National Highways Protective society and demands that chauffeurs shall be total abstainers from the use of intoxicating liquors, and thus is the conviction borne home day after day that the old liquor fraternity's fallacy that "liquor won't harm you if you let it alone' is conceded to be a fallacy, and that, no matter how religiously you let it alone, if you want to travel on a railroad train or steamboat, or in an automobile, or want to live anywhere almost, you are running long chances of liquor not letting you alone, nor your family alone, nor your business alone. Consequently, wherever responsibility of any importance attaches to a position, it is becoming imperative, and recognized as such, that those positions must be safeguarded by insisting that the occupants thereof abstain from the use of intoxicating liquors. And, as positions of responsibility are the ones which pay the largest returns to the occupants and are consequently the most desirable, it is being forced home to all those who would succeed, that they must qualify themselves by keeping their physical and mental powers at par, or above, and that liquor invariably places them at a discount and utterly disqualified to compete with powers not suffering this handicap.

Child Fghts to Save $6 from Footpads and Is Fatally Hurt.

New York, June 15.—Anthony Jantokas, a nine-year-old boy employed in a bowling alley, was held up by three armed men while on his way home early in the morning and received injuries from which he is dying in a hospital.

He had just received his week's pay of $6, and fought desperately to prevent his assailants from getting the money. A policeman saw the assault but reached the scene too late to save the lad. He arrested the three thugs.

CAN DONLIN COME BACK?

Baseball Fans Anxious to See Whether He Is a Has-been or Not.

Will Mike Donlin, the once famous outfielder of the New York Nationals, be able to come back? That is a big and interesting question, since the National commission reinstated him the other day. Mike is a natural hitter, and a lot of men of that sort have retained their batting eyes long after the advancing years have made them too slow to get out of their own way. He played more or less semiprofessional ball while under suspension for not reporting to New York, but he was not constantly in the game.

MIKE DONLIN, WHO WILL TRY TO REGAIN HIS OLD FORM.

It would be unwise to draw comparisons between him and Jimmy Callahan of the Chicago Americans, the greatest come-back of the age, for Callahan played regularly throughout the season every year when he was under suspension. Mike has been flying around the country in the show business, and the constant appearance before the footlights hardly brightened his own lamps. He may be the Mike of old, but we will have to wait until he has been in harness for a couple of weeks before judgment can be passed upon him.

WATER AND SEWAGE ON THE FARM.

By C. E. MARSHALL,

PROFESSOR OF BACTERIOLOGY OF THE M. A. C.

SUCH a close relation exists between water and sewage on the farm that to consider the one without the other is practically impossible. Contaminating agencies removed, the securing of pure water is a simple matter. Our methods of life, habits and practices, however, make the conditions as we find thm, and we are likely to continue under present systems for some time to come. Our hope lies in modification from time to time of the situation as it now exists. The advance of civilization and the progress that we make only emphasize the importance of more sanitary measures. Sewage from the home must be safely disposed of, and the waters must be cared for in such a manner as to eliminate all avenues of contamination to the water supplies.

The Menace.

We labor under the apprehension that the United States ranks among the most civilized countries of the world, yet, measured by the amount of typhoid fever (associated with typhoid fever, other diseases which would increase the number of sufferers from unsanitary conditions three to five fold), our country falls much below first rank. It is true that this standard represents a single denomination. It does measure, however, our ability to care for our water supply and to dispose of sewage in a way to avoid danger. Our appreciation of these matters is growing rapidly, it is true, and the result of education along these lines is gradually working out through cities and towns, where the greatest danger has existed heretofore, to the rural districts where the greatest danger now exists. At the present time, the percentage of typhoid victims and allied diseases is greater in the country districts than in cities and properly-managed towns. The explanation for this may be found in the fact that it is easier to control one water supply for 100,000 inhabitants than to control 20,000 water supplies for the same number of inhabitants.

How Water Is Contaminated.

The accompanying figure illustrates how well water may become contaminated by means of cell pools, vaults, barn yards and other means. This illustration is taken from C. A. Davis' "The Conditions Existing at Oxford, Oakand County, Michigan," published in Water Supply and Irrigation Paper No. 182, United States Geological Survey. (A) represents the house, (1) the house well, (2) the cess pool opened below. Into the cess pool runs a sewerage tile from the house. The soil is of a nature which allows the sewage and wastes from the house to enter and is so porous as to permit the material to find its way to the well in a short time. The well, on the other hand, dips below the ground water level into a coarser stratum of gravel. Some distance below at (b) is the town well. It is only a matter of time when the sewage at (2) will pass to well (1) and from well (1) to well (b).

The soil, as a rule, makes a good filter if the stratum is perfect, and if there is no constant impact of sewage against it. On the other hand, if there are imperfections in the soil, as usually exists, and, further, if sewage is allowed to soak constantly into the soil, the filtering action may be regarded as more or less imperfect and dangerout. The organic matter must be destroyed. To do this, suitable conditions must be furnished. Air must be allowed to penetrate from time to time, and the organisms which destroy the organic matter must be restored. If the sewage remains on the surface of the ground, and constantly forces its way into the soil, the soil soon loses its power to destroy the organic matter and the organisms which may do mischief. While it is a very slow process for sewage on the surface of the ground, or in a cess pool, or privy vault, to make its way into a well, nevertheless, there have been so many instances of this kind that there can be no doubt about the possibilities of it. This applies also to barnyards and pig pens. It follows, therefore, that the surface of the ground, the surface of the barn yard, should be well drained, and nothing allowed to remain which will in any way contaminate the soil.

Eliminate the Vault and Cess Pool.

These dangerous features should be whooly eliminated and should not be countenanced for a minute. The dry-earth closet, and a proper disposition of garbage and refuse from the home will answer all purposes.

Wherever it is possible to install a water system and the septic tank, this is recommended. It can be done at very low cost, and will furnish conveniences enjoyed by our urban neighbors.

A lawn social will be given by the ladies of St. John's church on the church lawn Thursday evening. 13-15*

ROOTS FOR FARM ANIMALS.

By R. S. SHAW,

DEAN OF THE MICHIGAN AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE.

ROOTS are possessed of a wide range of adaptibility, there being no class of animals on the farm but what some sort of roots is suited to their needs. Silage is not possessed of the same range of adaptibility, as its general use for the horse, pig and chicken has not yet been established. The exact value of the root crop is not fully understood, but its laxative action on the bowels, the cooling, stimulating and appetizing effects on animals on dry feed in winter are known to be valuable. It is valuable as a preventative of constipation, the forerunner of digestive troubles and other forms of disease.

For the horse the carrot seems best suited to the taste and answers better than any other root. Idle work horses can be wintered well and cheaply on oat straw, bright corn stover and an exceedingly small amount of grain and hay daily, especially when accompanied by regular, but small daily supplies of carrots. No other kind of roots seem to appease the desires of the horse for succulence in the winter season as well as carrot.

Roots are not so essential now for the dairy cow since silage has come into general use, but we still believe there is a place for them in the feed of the dairy herd. It has been found that cows on full feed, using a ration of clover hay, silage and grain, when offered in addition fifteen pounds of sliced mangolds per day, consume them with relish and increase their milk flow. While silage in moderation is a good feed for young heifers and bulls of the dairy breeds, if used too largely it tends toward the production of fat and may be replaced in some measure by roots, which are charged with producing sappy carcasses and large vital organs and viscera, for these are good things to develop in the young animals being grown for the dairy herd.

In feeding beef cattle, roots have undoubtedly been used to an extreme. If used in moderation with this class of animals, the beneficial effects are shown in a smooth, soft, sleek, glossy coat and a mellow, elastic skin, forming a sharp contrast to the dry, harsh coats of the heavily corn fed cattle. Excessive amounts tend to produce growthiness and retards fattening, hence roots in the beef herd are most useful for the young growing and breeding stocks.

Considering all the sorts of roots, they have a wider range of usefulness among sheep than any other class of domestic animals. Sheep will consume all kinds of roots in their natural state. They may furnish the succulence so necessary during the winter season, especially to aid in abundant milk production during the early lambing season before grass is available. Succulent foods tend to promote prolificacy and stimulate wool and meat production as well.

Mangolds, carrots and sugar beets can be used in the raw state for swine, but turnips and rutabagas cannot without cooking, unless the hogs are starved to it. We have come to feel that we cannot handle brood sows, young growing pigs, and even feeders without at least one mangold, carrot or sugar beet per head per day during the winter season when green feed is not available. Cooking is not necessary unless it is desired to mix grain with roots. Frozen roots should not be fed to pigs, as they will produce scours. Those who have used roots in any way for winter feeding seldom give up the practice.

Thus we find that here is an almost unlimited sphere of usefulness for root crops. A more general use of roots for our stock in moderate quantities during the winter season would do much to lessen our bills for veterinary assistance, patent medicines and high-priced condimental feeds.

If fowls or chicks have access to charcoal they will never be troubled with intestinal worms.

GREAT VALUE OF CONCRETE FENCE POSTS.

By H. H. MUSSELMAN.

ASSISTANT PROFESSOR OF FARM MECHANICS OF THE M. A. C.

ONE of the most practical as well as the most promising fields for the use of cement is in the manufacture of concrete fence posts. In most sections of the state material for their construction is easily obtainable, and they give such a promise of lasting qualities that a consideration of the essentials in their construction is worth while.

We shall not attempt to describe in detail the method of making. A great deal of this information is being widely distributed by the various manufacturers of cement, who thereby increase the sales of their product. Some attention is also given the matter by the agricultural press, and the department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., publishes Farmers' Bulletin No. 403, which gives in detail the steps to be followed.

Much of the published material which is intended to show the superior advantages of concrete for posts may leave a hazy notion as to the essential points to be observed in their manufacture. The lasting qualities of this kind of post have been brought forth so prominently that the matter of cost may disappoint those who take for granted their cheapness or those who may sacrifice strength for cheapness.

Strength is the first requisite of the concrete post. This can only be secured by the careful proportioning of material and the proper placing of a sufficient weight of reinforcement which should always be used. In wood posts strength may be of secondary importance since a post of ordinary size may be many times stronger than actually necessary when new, but this factor if omitted in the construction of concrete posts may make them worse than useless. We here note that while making concrete posts is a comparatively simple process and not beyond the average man it does require considerable care and judgment.

In the matter of material the sand should be clean and not contain more than 5 per cent of clay. It should be sharp, and the grains should vary in size from very fine to that which will just pass through a screen of quarter-inch mesh. The proportions usually recommend are 1:2:4; i. e., one of cement, two of sand and four of gravel where gravel is considered to be pebbles of such size as will not pass through a screen of quarter-inch mesh. If bank run gravel is used it should not contain too much fine sand nor pebbles large enough to interfere with the proper placing of reinforcement. proportion of 1:4 of cement and bank run gravel is right enough and if the grains of gravel are found properly graded in size will correspond favorably with the proportions of cement, sand and gravel named above. Any great excess of cement above that required to coat and bind the grains together and fill the voids is a pure waste of the most expensive part of the mixture.

In the matter of reinforcement, it will be found necessary to use not less than two pounds of metal per line post to secure the desired strength. This may consist of single wires hooked at each end and placed one in each corner of a square post not more than one inch from the outside. Two wires twisted together may also be used, and there would be less probability of these slipping in the concrete under strain. If single wires are used, No. 8 ungalvanized or two No. 12 twisted may be procured in straight bundles cut to the proper length. Galvanizing is not considered to be necessary since if the posts are properly made the wire will be properly protected from the air by the concrete. Reinforcing wires should be placed from 3-4 to 1 inch from the surface and should be reasonably straight and free from any bends or kinks which would tend to straighten out under strain and thereby defeat the purpose of the reinforcement.

Too much stress cannot be laid on the time required for curing. They should not be handled for 10 days at least and should be kept moist during that time. This can be conveniently done by covering with sand and wetting occasionally. Some authorities recommend that they be kept moist for a period of 30 days. They should not be used for 60 days at least. Handling posts too green may develop cracks invisible at first, but materially weakening the post.

The cost of a good concrete line post will not be less than 30 cents, material and labor considered. A rough estimate shows the cost to be divided in about the following proportions: Labor, one-third; cement, one-third; sand and gravel, one-sixth, and reinforcing, one-sixth. The weight of a line post 4 1-2x4 1-2 at the top, 4 1-2 x6 at the base and 7 feet long is about 175 pounds.

THE KING SPLIT LOG DRAG.

By R. S. SHAW,

DEAN OF THE MICHIGAN AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE.

THE simplest and most efficient device for keeping earth roads in shape is the split log drag. The construction is shown in the illustration, which is of a drag made from a log ten inches in diameter and eight feet long. The halves are held together by braces three feet long, and the front log is faced with a steel plate. Planks can be placed on top on which the driver can ride and control the angle of the drag by moving from one end to the other. The drag is drawn by a chain at an angle of forty-five degrees.

If used when the soil is moist, but not sticky, the earth moves freely along the face of the logs and is distributed into uneven spots on the road. A nicely rounded grade can be made by a few trips up and down the road. The best results are produced by making one round trip after each rain or wet spell.

Set Strong, Healthy Hens.

In order to obtain fall and winter eggs we must have stock produced from the eggs of healthy, vigorous fowls. A fowl which has suffered, or is suffering from disease should not be allowed to produce offspring. Although, in some cases, chicks from the eggs of unhealthy fowls succeed in getting out of the shell in fairly form, in the the end they almost invariably prove unsatisfactory. It is fortunate that the eggs from diseased fowls are seldom fertile, otherwise there would be more unthrifty birds in existence. The offspring from a "roupy" hen is not likely to inherit this disease, but is liable to have a weak constitution and thus fall an easy prey to roup or some other malady. Small, lazy, worthess individuals in the flock are usually from parent stocks which have been affected by disease. One of the first things to do then in the spring of the year is to discard all fowls that are not strong and healthy. A hen suitable to become the mother of the future laying stock should be a good producer herself, and one fed to stimulate production.

Increased Yields Vs. Increased Acres.

The profit from the farm depends not only upon the total crop, but in a large degree on the yield per acre. If the amount grown on 200 acres could be grown upon 160, the net profit would be greater because the labor would not be greatly increased and the interest on investment would be cut in two. A knowledge of the food requirements of plants, and of how to replace in the soil that which is removed by crops, and of how to make available the plant food which is already in the soil, would make it possible to double the amount produced. It is easier, and more satisfactory and profitable, for a man to double his knowledge of these things than to double the number of acres owned.

Books relating to the various phases of farming are so numerous that the farmer is at a loss to know which to buy. He can secure much valuable advice on this point by corresponding with the Agricultural College or the department of agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Instant Relif For Sore Feet

Ien Feet Cured Every Time. TIZ Makes Sore Feet Well No Matter What Ails Them.

Policemen all over the world use TIZ. Policemen stand on their feet all day and know what sore, tender, sweaty, swollen feet really mean. They use TIZ because TIZ cures their feet right up. It keeps feet in perfect condition. Read what this policeman has to say: "I was surprised and delighted with TIZ for tender feet. I hardly know how to thank you enough for it. It's superior to powders or plasters. I can keep my feet in perfect condition. Believe in my earnest gratitude for TIZ. I am a policeman and keep on my feet all days."—Emsy Harrell, Austin, Texas.

You never tried anything like TIZ before for your feet. It is different from anything ever before sold.

TIZ is not a powder. Powders and other foot remedies clog up the pores. TIZ draws out all poisonous exudations which bring on soreness of the feet, and is the only remedy that does. TIZ cleans out every pore and glorifies the feet—your feet.

You'll never limp again or draw up your face in pain and you'll forget about your corns, bunions and callouses. You'll feel like a new person.

TIZ is for sale at all druggists at 25c per box, or it will be sent you direct if you wish from Walter Luther Dodge & Co., Chicago, Ill.

HOW M'FARLAND BECAME BOXER

Chicago Lightweight Says Blow on Proboscis Started Him Off.

FIRST BATTLE IN BOILER SHOP

After Receiving Sting on Nose Packy Sailed Into His Opponent and Made Him Quit—Received $2.50 For His First Professional Fight.

"When that big fellow in the boiler shop yards in Chicago shot his fist against my nose something stung me and something told me right then that I was a prizefighter."

That's the way Packy McFarland says he started in the slam bang game.

"I tore into that negro," says Packy, "and smashed my right and left hands into his face so fast that he finally fell flat on his back, while the boilermakers who had gathered around began to yell. The negro—his name was Fox—got up and come back at me. We both had on gloves. The men had seen to that. Well, when his black face showed up again, I cracked him four times on that same nose. This time he went down for good. Instead of coming back at me Fox crawled over to one side and began trying to take off his gloves." Now, right here is where Packy claims the original story got its start.

"You ain't quittin', are you?" said one of the boilermakers in derision. "Get back in there and fight."

"Naw, sir-ee!" muttered Fox through his swollen lips. "I ain't gwine fight no more. I tells you all right now dat I ain't gwine fight no man what don't scatter his blows."

Packy swears that it was that fight with the negro boy in the boiler shop that made him a professional pugilist. He found out that it didn't pay to scatter his blows.

It was just five years ago that a little fellow called Packy by his deskmates slipped away from school and went to work in a boiler shop in Chicago as an apprentice. He received as salary the munificent sum of $10 a week.

"They kept me busy," says the little fighter, "chasing around the place after left handed monkey wrenches and that sort of thing for two weeks, and then I was promoted until I was allowed to hold the hot iron while a big fellow beat it with a hammer and stung me with the sparks. Sometimes they would let me use the hammer, but I never was much of a hammer thrower, and I used to spend a lot of my time toying with a set of boxing gloves that were kept around the place.

"Fox, the colored boy, allowed one day as how he could give me a trimming, and when the whistle blew I allowed he couldn't, and we went into the back yard to have it out."

Packy immediately thereafter conceived the idea that he was destined to be a hero of the ring, threw up his job and went in search of big money.

"You know I had to get home early every night," he confided, "and tell my mother that I was still working. This went along pretty good until the time came to come in with the money, and I wasn't there. The fighting game wasn't declaring any large dividends, and I had to beat it to my aunt's house to keep my mother from knowing that I was not working.

"After hanging around the gymnasiums for another month I finally got signed up for a preliminary fight with Johnny West. I licked him just as I did the negro, but even then the money wasn't coming any too strong. I got $2.50 for the fight, and my manager took $1.50 of it, and he had a regular job too."

CUBS HIGHEST SALARIED.

Several of Chicago Nationals Draw $4,000 or More Apiece.

The highest salaried big league team is Frank Chance's Chicago National league club. There isn't a doubt of this, in spite of the fancy price paid to Cobb, Mathewson, Crawford and Wagner.

The three Cub outfielders, Schulte, Sheckard and Hofman, draw down a total of $12,000 a year, Hofman getting more than either of the other two. Evers and King are close to the $5,000 mark, Mordecai Brown is over it, and Tinker gets in the neighborhood of $4,000. Chance himself pulls out $10,000 straight salary and also shares in the dividends of the club.

Why Delahanty Is Playing First.

Jim Delahanty is being played at first base by Hugh Jennings to give his leg a chance to mend. Del found it impossible to cover ground at second because of a bad knee which he injured last fall. He says that with rest his knee will mend and he will be able to fill his old position. But Del's hitting cannot be spared by the Tigers just now, so to keep him in the game he has been shifted to first base and O'Leary is doing stunts at second. Del figures that in a few weeks he will be able to play second again.

Smith to Referee Wrestling Bout.

Ed Smith, a Chicago newspaper man, will referee the world's championship match between Gotch and Hackenschmidt at American League park, Chicago, Labor day.

COMFORTING WORDS.

Many an Ypsilanti Household Will Find Them So.

To have the pains and aches of a bad back removed; to be entirely free from annoying, dangerous urinary disorders is enough to make any kidney sufferer grateful. To tell how this great change can be brought about will prove comforting words to hundreds of Ypsilanti readers.

John P. Burkheiser, 15 W. Congress St., Ypsilanti, Mich., says: "I had more or less trouble from my back and kidneys for some time and there was often a constant, dull ache across to stoop. That my kidneys were disordered and the cause of my trouble was shown by irregular passages of the kidney secretions. When I chanced to hear of Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a box at Weinmann-Matthews Co.'s drug store and upon using them as directed received great benefit. This remedy acted as a tonic to my kidneys and made me feel better in every way. There is no question about Doan's Kidney Pills living up to the claims made for them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.
